Bucktails Met Monday Night

Bucktails Had a Very Interesting Meeting Monday Night—Important Business Was Transacted—Well Attended.

Monday night's meeting of the Bucktail Post was well attended and was marked by especially keen interest in the number of important items of business that were up for consideration. In the absence of the Post Commander, Dr. W. A. Ostrander, W. A. Brownell, vice commander was in charge.

Frank Barbour, reporting for the committee appointed to take care of the procuring of Victory Medals for distribution here in connection with the Armistice Day celebration, stated that applications had gone forward from a number of members. Several others who were present and had not yet applied for these medals, took steps to do so at once.

The arrangements offered by the government to secure these medals are anything but satisfactory, in as much as special procedure has been laid down for each of the three arms of the service—the army, navy and marine corps. Again former officers are required to fill out special papers, differing from any others, but it seems to be impossible to get a supply of these papers. Altogether it would appear that the attempt is being made to make difficult rather than easy the securing of these gifts of the government, since as much red tape is being wound around the procedure as to discourage efforts to secure them.

A communication was read from the Hon W. W. Brown of Bradford, regarding the invitation of the Bucktail Post to entertain here the old Bucktails this past fall in a real reunion. Mr. Brown stated that insurmountable difficulties had caused the civil war veterans to give up their plans for this year but they had hopes of

CONOPIANS HAVE BIG EVENING

A fine banquet followed by an equally fine address made last Monday evening memorable in the history of the Conopus Club. The members of the club and their ladies to the number of assembled in the basement of the M. E. Church at 6:30, when the elaborate dinner was promptly served by the Priscilla Club of that church.

The address of the evening which dealt with economic and political conditions in England was fully up to the splendid reputation of the Rev Arthur Gregson as a forceful speaker. Particular interest in the address lay in the fact that the conditions were described and analyzed by a man who knows his subject perfectly by reason of childhood and youth spent in England as well as a recent ten week's visit there. Some opportunity will undoubtedly be offered the community at large to profit by the experiences of Mr. Gregson through a more general public meeting.

DEATH OF MRS. KATE TAYLOR

Just as we go to press word reaches us of the sudden death of Mrs. Kate Taylor at 3 o'clock Wednesday morning at the home of Mrs. R. Hamilton. The funeral will be held from the home at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon. The Rev. W. E. Van Dyke will officiate.

Mrs. Taylor is survived by a sister, Mrs. Harry Wells, a adughter, Mrs. Robert Hamilton and three grandchildren, Kathryn, Robert and John Hamilton, all of Smethport. A more extended notice will be given next week.

Don't forget the dates of the Chautauqua—November 15-17.

William Irons Passed Away

William Irons Buried Tuesday—One of the Oldest Residents in This Section.

Acute indigestion was responsible early Saturday morning for the death of William Irons, one of the oldest residents in this section. The funeral was held Tuesday afternoon from the home of his son, C. L. Irons on East Main street, and interment was made in Rose Hill cemetery.

Mr. Irons was born in Keating Township in the year 1836, and passed practically his entire life about Smethport. Of late years his health has not been of the best on account of a number of rather serious accidents that befell him at various times, but he always managed to recover and was frequently seen about the street. Last March he celebrated his eighty-fourth birthday, and has kept pretty much to his home on his farm on the Marvindale road.

William Irons was the brother of Otis and Oliver Irons, both of whom died but recently at very advanced ages. A third brother, George, has been seriously ill for some time, though at present his condition seems to be improved. In addition to George Irons, the deceased is survived by another brother, Stephen. The three children, C. L. Irons, Clayton Irons and Mrs. Alice Irons Hackett and two grandchildren, Frank Hackett and Miss Alice Irons, are all residents in and about Smethport.

NEW CHIEF ARRIVES.

C. W. Erisman, of the Highway Department at Harrisburg, arrived Sunday to take charge temporarily of this district in the highway work in place of M. A. Lynch whose resignation to permit his entering business with his father, went into effect Monday, November 1.

The entire community is hoping for the appointment of C. L. Lorah to this important position. Both by character and by experience, and knowledge of affairs in this district, he is beyond question the best fitted man for the job. His many friends are pulling for his elevation into district chief as a reward for his hard work heretofore. And there is reason to believe that the appointment will come to him.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank our friends and neighbors, and the American Legion, Modern Woodmen and P. H. C. for the kind sympathy extended to us for the many beautiful tributes during our recent bereavement.

MR. AND MRS. FRANK SCHOOLMASTER AND FAMILY.

THE CHAUTAUQUA WILL FURNISH A FINE PROGRAM

HARMONY AND FUN

When the Briggs Male Quartet appears on the opening afternoon and evening of the coming Chautauqua there will be no lack of both music and fun. Smiling "Bob" Briggs, the leader of the group, is a "regular" fun man all by himself. He is capable of carrying the program for the entre evening. He will be ably assisted by Mr. Ira J. Read, Mr. Marion J. Hunt and Mr. Ralph C. Bray.

These four will transport you into the sunny south by their negro melodies, will cheer you by their humorous stunts, and will win your approval by their ability to sing every kind of song, from the humorous to the scared in a really professional manner.

AN UP-TO-THE-MINUTE LECTURE

What the people want now is a man who really is up-to-date on present day affairs. Many men claim to be up-to-date, but their words betray them as still thinking in terms of 1914 or perhaps 1918. What is wanted is a man who talks not in terms of 1914-1918 or even of 1920, but a man who thinks in terms of the future, of the effect of the giant changes of the past decade upon the decades to follow 1920.

Such a man is announced as the lecture at the coming Chautauqua on the second evening. A Hunt Vautier has been through th war, but he is not merely a returned hero who comes to relate his exploits. He brings the viewpoint of the trained business man to bear on the happenings of the past few years and the far reaching

BUCKTAIL MINSTRELS AT AUSTIN FRIDAY

Tomorrow (Friday) night the Bucktail Minstrels, seventeen strong, appear at the Community House in Austin. Elaborate preparations have been made to make the evening a great success, with a short, snappy minstrel program early in the evening and a dance with Houghton's orchestra afterwards.

The minstrels will leave Smethport by auto in time to reach Austin for supper and a practice on the stage, before the actual performance. A large number of fun-lovers will accompany the troupe for the evening, promises the best of good times.

CRAIG WORKLEY BETTER

Word from the Bradford hospital where Craig Workley, son of Postmaster Workley, has been confined for some time, continues to be more encouraging every day and it is now expected that he may be brought home before long. Considerable relief came from the finding of the real explanation for his high fever after the operation or appendicitis, not as was expected in an effected lung, but in an abscess. This was lanced early Monday morning and improvement, which was immediate has held consistently.

THE METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH

Morning worship 10:30; sermon subject: "The Hidden Life." Evening worship, 7:30; subject: "The Secret of Peace." Sunday school at 11:45. Junior Epworth League, 3:00. Prayer meeting will be held Thursday p.m. this week. Afterwards we shall revert to the usual night, Wednesday. At this meeting the pastor is commencing a short series of expository studies on the Book of Amos. Everybody is welcome at the church "with the friendly spirit."

ARMISTICE DAY CELEBRATION

A. L. A. CAMPAIGN VERY SUCCESSFUL

Smethport's quota of $80.00 in the national American Library Association campaign is about assured. Miss Day, the local member of the association, who is in charge of raising the local allotment, reports good progress as the result of the presentation of the matter to the teachers in institute here last week. Prof. Stanley Bright told briefly and clearly just what the association's program for the future involves, and the response made through the collection taken was very liberal. About one third yet remains to be raised, but the success of the local campaign is certain.

CHANGE IN MAIL SERVICE

Several changes which went into effect on Monday, Nov. 1, in the running time of trains on the P. R. R. thorugh Larabee, have so effected the arrival of mail at the postoffice that it has been deemed advisable to change the hours when it will be open.

The evening train now arrives at the East Smethport station an hour later than before and thus would mean an hour longer day for the postal clerks in the office; but the length of their day is already limited by law so that the only way found to handle the situation is to close the office between the hours 6 to 7, opening again at 7 and staying open until 8:30.

Mails now arrive as follows: a.m., 9:30, 11:30; p.m., 5:30, 7:30. The mails are closed to leave the office at a.m., 7:30, 8:00, 10:40; p.m. 4:30.

Dudley Day Buys Pool and Billiard Room

Dudley Day last Monday secured possession of the business of the pool and billiard room which for years has been conducted by W. G. Holder in the Grand Central block. The purchase price is not stated, but the business is a good one and should prove profitable to the new owner.

The deal came about very suddenly. The two men were in conversation for a short time Saturday evening, at which time Mr. Day made Mr. Holder a proposition which was to be taken up or refused two days later. A few minutes' conversation Monday sufficed to bring about an understanding satisfactory to both, the money was paid over, and the business changed hands.

Bowling Alleys Opened Under New Management

The bowling alleys, which for the past summer months have been closed have been leased from Mrs. Backus, the owner, and have been opened to the public under the management of John Saulspaugh and Ed Oakerlund. This sport is one of the most popular which are practical for the winter months and there are a number of good bowlers in town who will be glad to know that it is not to be denied them this year.

The alleys are in the basement of the Backus building directly across from the Court House. Their central location and the fact that they will be open at the most convenient hours of the day should give assurance of great popularity for the next few months. Last year under the tutelage of Ted Schmidt who ran the alleys, a number of the young women of the town learned the game and became quite proficient.

Plans Armistice Day Celebration for Thursday, November 11—Big Doings the Day Through.

Plans for the celebration here of Armistice Day, Thursday, November 11, are going rapidly forward under the direction of the American Legion committee appointed for that purpose and headed by Paul Hallstrom. The sentiment seems to be especially strong that this should be the day for the ex-service men and women of the community to get together and celebrate with a banquet and ball that should become annual affairs.

Acting on that theory, the Bucktail's committee has arranged a very attractive program for the day. The report of the committee was made to Monday night's meeting of the Post and was unanimously adopted. Several valuable suggestions were made by members of the Post and were incorporated in the plans.

At 1:30 in the afternoon of November 11, all members of the Post, which will include virtually all ex-service men in as much as the Post has almost a 100% enrollment in this section, will gather at the Hose House, where they will be formed under the leadership of the Post Commander.

Exercises at the Court House will be held at 2:00. The following program will be followed:

Star Spangled Banner, led by the Smethport Band.

Invocation.

Song—Glee Club.

Address—Guy B. Mayo.

Presentation of Victory Medals.

Benediction.

Immediately after the program at the Court House there will be a pa-

Good Crops for Europe.

The International Institute of Agriculture at Rome, in reporting on the crop situation says that in the northern hemisphere all of the principal grains will exceed the yield of the 1919 season, running from 8 to 21 per cent greater than last year. In view of this fact it may be that we shall hear less of the starving hordes of Europe and of the imperative necessity of American citizens sacrificing their own food to sustain them.

Bricklayers Limousine League

According to the Electric Railway Journal, bankers in New York city are going to their offices on subway cars while bricklayers go to work in taxicabs. This is undoubtedly a statement applicable to specific cases and not to conditions generally, and yet it contains a truth that should not be missed. Most bankers have become bankers because they saved their money and time. In their youth they saved their money and invested it. If they now ride on street cars instead of automobiles there are two reasons—the habits of economy learned in youth and the deisre to save the time wasted because of congestion of traffic where automobiles crowd the streets.

Not only bricklayers but men engaged in many other skilled occupations have been making almost fabulous wages since the outbreak of the war. Some of them—many of them—if they had saved and wisely invested the money, would now be in a position to combine their assets and start banks of their own. But probably most of them, if reports are correct, have pursued the policy of enjoying the unusual income they have received. They have accepted the spirit of the teaching "eat, drink and be merry for tomorrow you may die." That appeals to most people as a better policy than "save, invest and multiply, and tomorrow you may be a banker." Hence there are more borrowers than there are lenders; and the lenders become bankers.

The End of Hunger Striking as Safe Politilal Weapon.

Shortly after her recent arrest on a charge of attempting to provoke sedition in the British navy, Sylvia Pankhurst wrote as follows to Lenine:

"I expect six months imprisonment. I consider a hunger strike, but I am afraid that the weapon is destroyed now since the government is letting the Irish hunger strikers die."

Probably Miss Pankhurst meant that things are not as they were in the period when a hunger striker was released after a few days and went out glorying in a victory over the government and listening to the cheers of admirers. To hunger briefly and win was one thing to hunger for ten weeks and die is quite different.

Hunger striking is no longer a novelty. At last men have died of it. And in the case of McSwiney, the first hunger striker to attract the world's serious attention, the novelty of the means was finally overshadowed by the personality of the striker. If at first the Mayor of Cork was regarded simply as a prisoner who was trying to force his jailers to release him, at the last he was viewed as a man who, utterly beyond hope of a living victory, was striving for a triumph in death itself.

As Sylvia Pankhurst says, hunger striking is no longer a weapon—unless the striker is prepared to go the whole fatal way; and even then there will never be a parallel, in public interest, to the MacSwiney case.

The Strange Case of Corkey the Silent.

Ten years ago a convict named Patrick J. Hanley, serving a term in the Massachusetts State Prison as an habitual criminal, conceived an elaborate plan of escape and confided its details to another inmate of the institution. His confidence was betrayed and his scheme was frustrated. In his anger and depression Hanley vowed never to speak again, and this vow he is said to have kept faithfully until his release on Wednesday. He was known as "Corkey the Silent" to prisoners and keepers.

If Hanley could and would describe his sensations and emotions as a silent man he might tell a very interesting story. For others who are tempted under stress of indignation and disappointment to make unusual vows it would be instructive to learn how long the impulse of rage remained potent in Hanley's mind and when it was supplanted by what some may term admirable determination but others may call reprehensible stubbornness. Of course, Hanley had a better opportunity than free men have to refrain from speech. Prison discipline, prison practice, undoubtedly helped him. And there is the possibility—many men will say the high probability—that in the soul crushing environment of the prisin Corkey the Silent may have let his vow overpower his will, may have ceased to be a man pursuing an object, and become a victim of mental reactions of which he had no knowledge and which he consequently could not take into account when he entered on this test of endurance.

This excursion into absolute uncommunicativeness might be treated lightly by the thoughtless. It would be easy to congratulate this unfortunate man on having uttered no folly, or having saved himself the necessity of explanations and apologies. But the suffering Hanley underwent makes this a tragedy, not a jest. It is even permissible to understand his bitterness when his long cherished dream of liberty was brought to nothing. To recognize that he suffered is not to regret that his attempt at jail delivery was foiled.

What will Hanley do now that he is out? Will his self-imposed habit of silence persist? Or will he be able to return to the practices he knew before he took his vow?—N. Y. Herald.

DRY FOODSTUFFS BY SUN OR HEAT

Sundrying Demands Rainless Season of High Temperature and Bright Sunshine.

IDEAL CONDITIONS OUTLINED

Where a Glass-Covered Solar Drier Is Employed, Both Dust and Insects Are Excluded—Home-Made Equipment Efficient.

Wherever climatic conditions make it possible, sundrying is the least expensive method of preserving foodstuffs. Successful sundrying demands a rainless season of bright sunshine and high temperature, and the extent to which it can be carried on in any district is determined by the length of its rainless midsummer and autumn period. Ideal conditions for sundrying all fruits, both early and late, are found in the interior districts of California, where sundrying has become an industry of large proportions, and throughout the Southwest. In the intermountain region of the Northwestern states, over the larger part of the Great Plains area, and in all but the coastal portions of the Southern states, the sundrying of such early-maturing fruits as berries, cherries, apricots, and peaches is everywhere possible. In much of this territory warm, rainless weather usually continues sufficiently far into the autumn to permit sundrying of such late-maturing fruits as apples, pears, and plums, as well as of such vegetables as sweet corn, pumpkin and squash. Outside these areas and in any region in which the late summer and early autumn are characterized by frequent rainfall or periods of low temperature and high humidity, it will not be wise to depend wholly upon sundrying, as a few days of rainy weather may cause the loss of a large amount of valuable material, specialists in United States department of agriculture say.

Disadvantage of Sundrying.

As ordinarily conducted, sundrying in the open air has the disadvantage that the drying material is exposed for a considerable length of time to the visits of insects which deposit their eggs in it and also to dust-borne by air currents. Insects may be excluded by providing the trays in which the material is dried with covers of mosquito netting tacked tightly in place over the top, but such covers do not wholly prevent the entrance of dust. Both dust and insects are excluded if a glass-covered solar drier is employed, and a device of this character should be used in any district in which high winds carrying much dust prevail during the drying season.

Using Artificial Heat.

If artificial heat is used, the work is independent of weather conditions, and it is possible to dry a considerable number of foodstuffs which ordinarily cannot be dried in the sun; for example, winter varieties of apples, prunes, and such vegetables as potatoes and carrots. It has the disadvantage of requiring close supervision in order that overheating and subsequent injury to the material may be avoided, but if the work is properly done the products will retain their natural appearance and flavor to a greater degree than it is possible in sundrying. The process is more expensive than sundrying, since an evaporator must be constructed or purchased and a supply of fuel provided. For the individual family the investment represented by the evaporator need not be a burden; anyone who can use ordinary tools can construct in spare time and with a trifling outlay for material a cook-stove drier, while the heat of the stove or range employed for cooking can be utilized for operating the drier. If this home-made equipment is properly constructed it is quite as efficient as the similar small drier sold on the market at several times its cost.

GATHER UP STONES IN ROAD

Machine Drawn by Two Horses Drags Series of Chains, Which Pick Up Obstructions.

Where large and small pebbles are collected loosely in the gravel of a road, they are usually scattered in such a way that it would be an irksome job to collect them by hand.

A new stone-gathering machine is drawn by one or two horses. A series of chains dragged loosely along the road sink into the small depressions and gradually scrape together the pebbles or stones. The obstructions are then drawn into a pocket, from which they are deposited at intervals in piles at the side of the road.

Chains Form a Heavy Net That Sweeps the Roads for Stones.

A pile of a hundred or more stones represents the work of only a few minutes, when gathered by this machine. How much time would it represent expressed in terms of man-energy? One hundred stones spread over an area of 400 square feet, in a plot 20 feet square, places one stone in every four square feet. A man working at average speed could pick up these stones and pile them at the side of the road in 10 or 15 minutes; but the machine with its dragging chains will do the work in a moment.—Popular Science Monthly.

PULL TOGETHER FOR ROADS

Transportation Is Vital Problem for All Interested In Nation—Welfare of All Is at Stake.

A new era in American progress took its date from the period just preceding the Civil war. During this era entire states were transformed from wilderness into prosperous, thriving commonwealths. The commercial and agricultural boundary lines of the country were slowly but surely pushed westward by the relentless march of railroad expansion.

Today our country faces problems equally as momentous. We should be on the threshold of an almost limitless era of better roads development, writes E. C. Tibbits in Motor. The future welfare of vast communities is at stake. There is dire need of unified concentration on the subject of good roads; and need of vigorous, harmonious action, by one big federated body of all organizations interested in good roads. Dissension or jealousy should not creep into good roads activities on unimportant details, as has lately been apparent. We are all after the same objective—more roads and better highways—national, state and local. So let us all pull together.

INCREASED USE OF HIGHWAYS

Economic Problems Have Arisen That Call for Presentation of Facts to Public.

Owing to the rapidly growing use of the public highway as a passenger and freight carrier—both in short and long hauls—and the lack of a corresponding progress in the efficiency of the road itself, economic problems have arisen that call for a careful and a clear presentation of facts to the public. As a result of the divergence between the service highways are called upon to render, and their ability to render that service, the highway from an educational standpoint has become a subject of much greater importance than heretofore, so that highway officials—national, state and county—are placing greater reliance upon the educational phase of highway work in securing effective and practical co-operation from the public.

GOOD ROADS AID MARKETING

Farmer Wishing to Haul in Most Economical Manner Cannot Afford to Overlook Benefits.

The farmer interested in hauling his produce to market in the most economical fashion cannot afford to overlook the benefits derived from good roads. Investigation before and after the improvement of certain highways shows that the cost per ton mile was practically cut in half by reason of the betterment of the road. In other words, good roads mean a big reduction in that part of overhead which covers hauling—and hauling of some sort is being done practically the year round.

Must Fit the Road.

All roads are not good roads, nor will they be for years to come, and it is up to manufacturers of automobiles to deliver vehicles that can traverse anything called a road.

Road Surface Damage.

The filling up and stoppage of culverts causes more damage to road surfaces than any other one thing.

Argument for Good Road.

A bad road is the best argument there is for a good road.

GETTING READY FOR THE INTERNATIONAL

Preparations for the World's Greatest Live Stock Exposition at Chicago during the first week of December, are now well under way. Each season this spectacle of animal life is given a new stage setting, involving the labor of hundreds of men for several weeks and an expenditure of many thousand dollars. Part of this is necessitated by essential convenience for man and beast; part goes to furnish the coloring that has given the Exposition atmospheric brilliancy, intensified as each season rolls around. An enormous sum is required for light effects a feature of the "International" that has always been abreast and much of the time in advance of such improvement as electrical ingenuity develops. This year a number of Scenic novelties have been introduced, arrangement of exhibits has been perfect and more elaborate setting given the latest addition to this aggregation of spectacles—the Grain and Hay Show, under the auspices of the Chicago Board of Trade.

When the gates are thrown open to the public, November 27th, a month hence, all this elaborate and expensive going-ready programme will inaugure the most successful International Live Stock Exposition since the inauguration of that enterprise, which has been effective in promoting the welfare and progress of the live stock industry of all sections of North America.

Many to Attend Penn'a Day at State College

State College, Pa., Nov. 1.—Just as privately endowed colleges and universities observe their "Founder's Day" each year with fitting services, so does the Pennsylvania State College celebrate its annual "Pennsylvania Day" which this year falls on next Saturday, November 6th. Arrangements have been completed for accommodating the largest crowd that ever attended this distinctly Penn State function. At least 5,000 visitors from all parts of the state will be here and upwards of 10,000 people are expected to witness the Penn State-Nebraska football game in the afternoon. All Greek letter fraternities will hold house parties and entertain hundreds of visitors from Friday until Monday.

The day's program will start with a review of the student cadet regiment early in the morning followed by an assembly of students and visitors in the Schwab auditorium where Judge Joseph Buffington, of Pittsburgh, will make the principal address. Adjutant General Frank D. Beary will review the cadet regiment. The student glee club will conclude the day's program with a concert in the evening.

BOYS PLAY EMPORIUM NEXT SATURDAY

The high school football squad journey next Saturday to Emporium for the first of a series of two games, the second of which is to be played here on Armistice Day. The trip will as usual be made by auto and the boys are again in the hunt for friends with cars who will help them lighten the expensive item of transportation.

No game was played last week as Eldred, with whom a game had been scheduled, was unable to muster 11 men who were well enough to stand a game. Effort was made to bring another team here for a game, but the lateness of the attempt together with bad weather, made this course impossible.

There seems to be quite a sentiment in favor of a football game for Thanksgiving and in response to it the boys are lengthening their season a week and are getting in touch with other teams in this section

NOTICE.

The Potato Creek Railroad Company hereby gives notice that on the eighteenth day of October, 1920, it filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission, at its office in the city of Washinton, D. C., an application for permission to abandon a portion of its line of railroad situated in the counties of Potter and McKean, in the state of Pennsylvania, and for authority to construct a branch line of railroad in the County of McKean, state of Pennsylvania.

Pursant to the requirements of the Interstate Commerce Commission, the said application is now published as follows.

Before the Interstate Commerce Commission.

APPLICATION No.

In re application of the Potato Creek Railroad Company for a certificate of Public Convenience and necessity, evidencing the Commission's approval of the abandonment of a portion if the petitioners' railroad and of the construction of a branch.

TO THE INTERSTATE COMMERCE COMMISSION:

The Potato Creek Railroad Company hereby makes application for a certificate of Public Convenience and Necessity, under the provisions of paragraphs (18) to (22) inclusive of Section 1 of the Interstate Commerce Act as amended by Section 405 to the Transportation Act, 1920, and sets forth:

(1) The full names and post office addresses of the applicant carrier, its president, its secretary and its attorney, are as follows: Potato Creek Railroad Company, Norwich, McKean County, Pennsylvania; R. R. Lewis, President, Coudersport, Potter Co. E. A. Mayer, Secretary, Marine Trust Bldg., Buffalo, N. Y., Archibald F. Jones, Attorney, Coudersport, Pennsylvania.

(2) The applicant carrier is a corporation organized under the general railroad laws of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania for the purpose of constructing a standard gauge railroad from the village of Keating Summit, in the County of Potter, to the village of Clermont, in the County of McKean, State of Pennsylvania.

(3) The making and filing of this application was duly approved and authorized at a meeting of the Board of Directors of the applicant carrier duly called and held on the 28th day of September, 1920, at its office in the village of Norwich, McKean County, Penn'a.

(4) All of the portion of the line of railroad proposed to be abandoned is in the counties of Potter and McKean, in the State of Pennsylvania, and all of the branch proposed to be constructed and operated is in the said County of McKean.

(5) (a) The applicant carrier desires to abandon the portion of its line extending form its eastern terminus at Keating Summit, where it connects with the Buffalo and Susquehanna Railroad, to its connection with the line of the Pennsylvania Railroad at Liberty, Pennsylvania, a distance of about two and one half miles; and upon the completion of the branch hereinafter mentioned to abandon the portion of its line of railroad extending from said connection at Liberty to the village at Norwich, a distance of about twelve miles.

(b) The applicant carrier proposes and desires to construct a branch line from its western terminus at Keystone, a distance of about two miles, north to a junction at Hamlin siding with the line of the Pennsylvaania railroad which runs from Larrabee, McKean County, to Johnsonburg, Elk County, Penn'a.

(6) The railroad of the applicant carrier was originally constructed to carry traffic derived from extensive lumbering operations. These operations have practically ceased and there is not now, nor will there be in the future sufficient business to require the continuance of the portion of the railroad proposed to be abandoned. The Pennsylvania Railroad and the branch proposed to be constructed will adequately serve the remaining industries and will answer all requirements of public convenience and necessity. In the judgment of its officers the present railroad of the applicant carrier cannot be operated except at loss.

(7) If objection should be made by anyone to the proposed abandonment and construction of the branch, applicant desires an opportunity to produce evidence before the Commission or an examiner and be heard by counsel.

WHEREFORE, the applicant carrier prays your Honorable Commision to issue a certificate of Public Convenience and Necessity permitting it to abandon the said portion of its railroad and to construct the proposed branch,

MANY FAILURES DUE TO RUBBER

Some Tests Recommended by Department of Agriculture to Find Reliability.

POOR RINGS CAUSE TROUBLE

Four Inches of Rubber Should Stretch to Ten Inches and Then Return to Original Length — Sample Should Not Break.

The caller, who already had knocked twice, was putting her hand on the hooked screen door to see if rattling it would arouse her neighbor, when Mrs. Jessup appeared at the basement door. In her arms were a number of jars of canned fruit, and she looked so disturbed that her caller wondered what had happened.

Catching sight of the caller, Mrs. Jessup cried: "Just a minute, until I place these jars on the table and I'll let you in." The jars deposited, she hastened to unfasten the door.

"Have you been standing there long?" she inquired. "I'm sorry I didn't hear you knock, but I was so upset at what I found in my storage closet this morning that I guess if the Angel Gabriel had sounded his trumpet I wouldn't have heard him."

What She Found.

In answer to her caller's sympathetic inquiry as to the trouble, she continued:

"I've always had splendid luck canning fruits and vegetables until this year; in fact, I have boasted that I never lost more than two or three jars in a season, but this year"—she threw up her hands—"every few days I find another jar that is 'working,' and this morning there were five down there sizzling away. The fruit and vegetables I have put up cost so much, to say nothing of the sugar, that I could sit down and weep to think of the loss of money it entails, besides my work and time.

"And the worst of it is I can't see what is the trouble. If I knew, I could avoid it in canning the late fruits and vegetables. I've done everything 'according to Hoyle,' just the way I always have, and yet they don't keep this year. I know the price of commercially canned food is going to be ever so high next winter, and I wanted to save by putting up my own. Besides, we like the home-canned variety better. But a few more spoiled cans and all the profit in home canning will be gone in my case. What do you suppose is the trouble?"

The caller asked a number of questions, the last of which was: "Did you test your rubber rings?"

"Why, no; I never have," Mrs. Jessup replied.

"Maybe you never have, but I found it necessary this year," interrupted her friend, "and I believe poor rings are at the root of your trouble. I hear the country is flooded with cheap ones this year. Everything that enters into their manufacture and sale has gone up, and many manufacturers, in order to put on the market a medium-priced product, have reduced the quality in the rings they are making, I'm told. A few days or a few weeks after the jars are stored these rings commence to deteriorate, the air gets in, and the contents begin to spoil.

Testing the Rings.

"I'd rather waste a few rings testing them than lose a whole lot of valuable food by not doing it. I had to test several brands, when I started canning, before I found one that seemed to be all right."

"How do you test can rings? I don't understand how you could, but if that's the cause of my canned stuff spoiling I want to know how 'to test them.'"

"I use the tests that the United States department of agriculture recommends," replied the visitor. "There are a number of these tests which may be applied; but if a ring passes successfully the two that I am going to tell you about, you can be pretty sure it is all right.

"The first is to cut a six-inch piece out of a ring; take hold of the ends so that there are four inches between the fingers; stretch the piece along a ruler

Highway Improvement

TEST GOOD ROAD MATERIALS

Much Detailed Technical Information Secured in Experiments By Public Roads Bureau.

It is believed that the bureau of public roads, United States department of agriculture, through its testing division has done more than any other single agency in developing the intelligent use of bitumens in road construction. For example, experiments conducted under service conditions by this bureau decided whether a soft stone could be used in bituminous macadam and bituminous concrete; whether rocks having a marked cleavage could be used to advantage in such construction; what quantities of bitumen give the best results when used as surface treatments on water-bound macadam and what kind of covering material and what quantities should be used in any case.

A large amount of detailed technical information valuable to highway engineers generally has been secured by the bureau in the course of its research and experimental work. The ability of the highway engineer to construct roads which would accommodate automobile traffic has, in no small degree, been the underlying reason that the automobile industry has developed to its present enormous proportions.

In 1916 the passage of the federal aid road act marked a new epoch in highway construction in the United States. The war then in progress emphasized the need of further developments in road building. The bureau has sought to keep well to the front in the solution of the new problems presented and is today conducting experiments and investigations of a fundamental character.

CARRYING PRODUCE TO CITY

Possibilities of Motortruck Only Touched as Yet—Improved Roads Will Assist.

About 20 per cent of motortrucks in the United States are owned by farmers, according to a well-informed motortruck official, but about 90 per cent of all the motortruck work is done in the country. It is announced that the expenditure in the United States for hard-surfaced highways during next year will be around $833,000,000 as compared with $125,000,000 during this year. The possibilities of the truck for carrying produce and supplies between farms and cities is only touched as yet. The additional roads proposed will give added economy to motortruck transportation.

WORK GRADER OVER HIGHWAY

First Round Trip After Each Rain Should Be to Smooth Up Center and Remove Surplus.

The center of an earth road dries more quickly after a rain than do the sides. Therefore the first round trip over the road with a grader after each rain is on the center with the blade set at an angle that will move the surplus dirt ahead and out. This method smooths up the center first, where the traffic should travel and wishes to travel.

MUST USE PNEUMATIC TIRES

Norway Proposes Legislation to Prevent Damage to Improved Roads by Heavy Trucks.

Norway is the first country in the world to propose national legislation that will specify that motortrucks up to two tons capacity, must be equipped with pneumatic tires so as to prevent damage to roads and to cut down the excessive cost of highway repairs due to the use of solid tires.

Good Roads Fix Prices.

Roads in a large mensure determine the character of agricultural activity, the markets its products may reach, which in turn fixes the prices of such products.

Plant Deserves Trial.

Biennial sweet clover is a pasture plant that deserves a trial in a small way on every farm.

Silage for Sheep.

Silage is rapidly coming to play an important part in the feeding of sheep.

ASSISTANT TO THE DIRECTOR OF THE SAVINGS DIVISION

W. Harrison Walker, Assistance to the Director of the Savings Division of the Third Federal Reserve District of Bellefonte Pa.,

During the 1919—1920 School year McKean County not including Bradford or Kane had 119 schools enrolled with the Savings Society Section. The pupils in these 119 schools, according to reports on file at the Philadelphia offices saved and invested these savings in Stamps and Treasury Savings Certificates to the extent of $26727.40.

The per capita of McKean county for 1918 was $2.89 representing a maturity value of Thrift and Savings Stamps purchased of $473,636.00; during 1919 the per capita was $1.65 representing a maturity value of $75,[illegible], and from Januray 1st to Sept. 1, 1920 the per capita is $1.46 which represents a maturity value of $29,[illegible].

Thrift and Saving and to invest wisely is a new movement, destined in the probability to become in the very near future a work of serious and substantial importance in the schools of our Nation.

For the present School year the Savings Division of the Third Federal Reserve District is appealing to every school and teacher to accept as a mark, to aim for, the purchase through each school of an average of two 5.00 Savings Stamps per enrolled pupil. We know that the children in one section have more money than children in another section and there may be many different reasons why the "middling" in one or more schools cannot attain this figure. It is set up as an objective and for the further reason that we believe it will furnish a much needed link to connect the parents with the school savings work. Whatever is done will prove most beneficial to all children. The best place to preach economy and practice Thrift is in our public schools.

It is every child's natural right to possess property; to become independent; to become a leader in the affairs of his community, his State and his Nation.

Teachers, you are personally responsible as custodians of children. By your actions you direct the pupil in his ways of conduct and character formation. You are responsible for many a child's future, advancement, and virtually for the prosperity and destiny of our Nation. To you is entrusted a great work. In you is reposed the full confidence of the Mothers of today.

It takes effort to save money the effort a large majority of the American people have recently refused to take.

Teach the boy and girl in our schools that the time to save money is before they spend it. Teach them the real value of money, and that they should use it for life's necessities, for buying essentials, endurable articles, and in the avoidance of spending it for foolish pleasure and things. Teach them the "Habit of Saving."

Make it your business, as a teacher, to get one boy or girl in your school to learn and actually practice the Savings Habit and you will have done a wonderful amount of good, and your school work will not only have been a genuine pleasure but a tremendous success.

100% enrollment of McKean County teachers at Institute, but which does not include Bradford or Kane.

success for another year.

A committee was appointed to prepare resolutions of respect on the recent death of Comrade Samuel Schoolmaster, a member of the local Post.

Nominations were then made for officers in the Legion for the next year and election will take place at the December meeting of the Post. Nominations for Commander were as follows. R. R. Lindsley, Dr. Robert Hamilton, W. A. Brownell, Paul Hallstrom, for Vice Commander, Dr. A. R. Livermore, Norman Hull and Albert Johnson; for Adjutant, Frank Barbour and J. D. Hogarth; for Finance Officer, Frank B. Fay, and A. M. Anderson; for Historian, Fred Burlingame, Paul Denning and Earl Lyman; for Chaplain, the Rev. Father D. E. Dougherty. Nominations for members of the executive committee will be made in connection with the election next meeting.

On the suggestion of R. R. Lindsley, a committee was appointed to look into ways and means for providing a benefit burial fund for the Post.

The meeting closed with an enthusiastic discussion of the basketball situation. It was decided to enter a Post team into competition with the number of town teams that are always found hereabouts. Paul Denning, Robert Hall and William Nellis were left in charge of the starting of the team and were assured the [illegible] of the Post.

results of these events are predicted by him with a clearness and logic that have won him great approval in his lecture experience.

MAYFLOWER SINGERS AND PLAYERS

Talented artists will present a full concert on second afternoon and a prelude at night.

Four talented, vivacious artists compose the Mayflower Singers and players Company which presents a full concert in the afternoon of the second day and a prelude at night. The Mayflowers give programs of great variety, combining orchestral entertainment full of variety and vivacity.

The entire program both from a vocal and instrumental standpoint is presented in a finished and artistic manner. Hear them on the second day.

THE MIKADO IN COSTUME

Gilbert and Sullivan's well known and popular light opera "The Mikado," will be the feature entertainment offering of the coming Chautauqua.

This tuneful comedy in song will be given by the "Oxford Company" in costume. The "Oxford Company" is picked out by the Lyceum Magazine as among the best singing companies in the Lyceum and Chautauqua field. In addition they have the distinction of having introduced such productions as "The Mikado" into the realm of the possible by a company of five The best proof of their success is that they have an increasingly large number of imitators now in that field.

DO YOU HELP OR HINDER?

"Forces that help or hinder in the progress of a nation" is the clear cut title of the "different" lecture which is promised from Mrs. A. C. Zehner at the coming Chautauqua.

Mrs. Zehner's success as a lecturer is due to her ability to put her worth while opinions in a style that is "different." Her illustrations are not trite, her similes are not stale, her vocabulary is not narrowly restricted, on the other hand she says what she has to say in a manner wholly novel, up-to-date and convincing.

rade, the hour being set for 3.30. The order of march is as follows:

Marshall—J. D. Hogarth; Smethport Band; G. A. R. in automobiles; Veterans of the Spanish War in automobiles; ex-service women in automobiles; ex-service men.

The parade will, of coures, be on Main street and will follow the usual line, proceeding from the Court House to Pike Street, counter-marching to Byron, returning to the Court House for dismissal.

The high school football team is to help out the day's celebration with its football game at Kane Field immediately after the parade, Emporium high school being scheduled to appear here.

At 6:30 the annual banquet of the Post will be held, and it has been decided that the ladies will be admitted this year. Notices have already been mailed out to all members announcing plans for the banquet and requesting by return mail information as to the number each member will have with him as guests.

The celebration will come to a close with a military ball in the Lyceum under the auspices of the Post if this can be arranged; if not the entire Post will undoubtedly attend Bradford's evening program of masquerade parade and dance.

While there is no desire to interfere with celebartions of the day in any of the nearby towns, it is felt that Smethport people should be together on this occasion. There is no law making Armistice Day a holiday, but it is urged that the entire community lay aside other business for the afternoon of the eleventh and join in commemorating the historic event that brought the World War to an end.

HISTORY BOOKS ARE WRONG

Documentary Evidence Concerning Declaration of Independence and Lincoln's Gettysburg Speech.

The Declaration of Independence wasn't signed on July 4, 1776. Abraham Lincoln didn't dash off his famous Gettysburg address on an old envelope as he rode on the train to Gettysburg. Most likely, George Washington never chopped down the cherry tree. The manuscript division of the library of congress isn't sure about the cherry tree episode, because George didn't write a letter about it, but it holds documentary evidence regarding the other two illusions of our school days, so the history books that we studied so trustfully were wrong.

The manuscript division has the two original drafts of the Gettysburg speech, one carefully written on official White house stationery, partly in pencil, and the other in ink, both displaying Lincoln's well-known handwriting. The first draft and the revised copy differ slightly from the address as it was finally delivered.

As for the Declaration of Independence, the official journal of the Continental congress for July 4, 1776, shows that on that day congress adopted the declaration by vote, but the signing, which we make so much of, was deferred as unimportant. Most of the members signed the document a month later, while in 1781, five years later, some other congressmen who were not in office in 1776 also added their signatures, thereby gaining immortality.

SIDON ONCE POWERFUL CITY

Metropolis of the Ancient Phoenicians Knew Domination of Three World-Ruling Races.

Sidon, the metropolis of the ancient Phoenicians, was dominated first by the Egyptians, but the yoke of the Pharaohs was thrown off, after which the Assyrians ruled with heavy hand. Later Phoenicia became a Roman province. Greek culture had a shaping influence, so that the story of Sidon is in large degree the story of the ancients through a period when classic history was shaping.

Sidon was built on an island, but the shifting sands of the Mediterranean filled in the harbor and joined the island with the mainland, so that the site of the ancient city is now on a peninsula. The Sidonians, along with the Phoenicians in general, were a seafaring race of fishermen. The calling of the sea was directly responsible for the rise of the Phoenicians to a powerful place in the nations, the domination of the Mediterranean, the founding of Carthage, colonizing in Spain and the threatening of Rome itself.

As early as the seventh century before Christ, the Sidonians had piloted their tiny craft, propelled by sails and banks of oars, around Africa. Many of the archeological finds of Sidon have been preserved in the British museum and in the museum of Constantinople.
